JOB-WORK OF ALL KINDS
Executed to order, neatly, and on reasonable terms.

It is intended to make the SHENLEY SENTINEL a first-class Family Newspaper, devoting to politics, literature, and general news, and to the interests of the community. To sustain our paper, we naturally expect the assistance and co-operation of the people of Shelby and adjoining counties. While the local interests of this section will not be neglected, we will aim to advance the general prosperity of the State.

The general interests and welfare of this section can in no better way be advanced than through the medium of a newspaper.

Devoting our attention to all topics of the day, we will freely and independently discuss them. A cordial support will be given to Democratic and Conservative principles in opposition to the revolutionary measures of Radicals.

Believing that this is the only course which will result in permanent prosperity to the country and that these views are such as the people of Kentucky naturally and heartily endorse, we shall uphold and defend them at all times. Firm in the opinion that we can make our paper acceptable, we ask a liberal patronage.

Correspondence upon all subjects is respectfully invited. All communications must be accompanied by the names of the writers, not for publication, unless desired, but as a guarantee of good faith and responsibility.

Communications to insure favorable attention should be brief, to the point, and plainly written upon but one side of the paper.

Repeated communications cannot be returned.

Announcements of Marriages and Deaths published gratis.

Obituary Notices, Tributes of Respect, etc., will be charged fifty cents for each line—the money to accompany the manuscript.

Parties ordering us to advertise for them in other papers must advance the amount requisite to pay for such advertisement.

Advertisements under the "Special Notice" head will be charged 50 per cent. additional to the above rates.

All transient advertisements, and all advertisements from a distance, cash.

Yearly advertisers have the privilege of altering their advertisements quarterly. More frequent changes must be contracted for, otherwise they will be charged 20 cents per square for each change. Collection will be made quarterly.

Original Poetry.

(For the Shelby Sentinel.)
TO AN ABSENT FRIEND.

THOUGHTS WHILE LOOKING AT HIS PHOTOGRAPH.

Gray clouds were drawn across the sky,
The winds are lone to-day,
I heed them not, as dreamily
My wayward spirits stray;
I hold within my hand, a gem
An Artist's canvas drew,
While busy fancy crowds my brain
With thoughts of every hue:

And the hours go on,
And the sun sweeps down
Under the folds of gray;
Yet the sweet content,
With strong peace blend
Passeth not with them away.

A charm lies in this quiet face
Whereon I feast mine eyes,
My words the spell can never trace
That upward gaze on mine,
The bearded lip, the firm, proud mouth,
The forehead's clear, wide swell;
The noble head with dark brown wealth
The Artist traced them well:

And it seemeth now
"Nearer the clear, wide brow,
The eyes are searching mine,
And I turn away
From the heaven-like ray
Only to look again.

I have gazed long on this pictured face,
And gazing there I dream
"Till what the gifted Artist traced
A breathing soul do seem;
Whereon, by those dark, dreamy eyes
That upward gaze on mine,
I know a shadowy fountain lies
Deep as the Tropic sea:

And my dream sweeps on
With the lone winds moan,
And fancy hinds do bear,
While these glorious eyes,
Like the starlit skies,
A sweet smile seem to wear.

SHELBY COUNTY, April 1867.

A TERRIBLE PLUNGE.

At the close of a sultry day in August I arrived at an obscure inn which was located in one of the rural villages of the West. The village possessed no striking difference from the other villages of the country, save an appearance of slovenliness on the part of its inhabitants, which estranged it somewhat from that sterling enterprise that so characterizes the active spirit of the West. The village inn appeared to have imbued its share of the prevailing slovenliness to the fullest extent, as it wore an aspect of extreme unthriftiness, mingled with a certain suspiciousness of evil which confronts the traveller with an instinctive feeling of distrust that all is not well where such surroundings abound.

I had often heard the inn spoken of unfavorably, but not caring to hazard belief in endorsing them as authentic, I had allowed the dark stories of the mysterious disappearance of travellers, and midnight orgies, to pass without awakening a second thought. But on seeing the inn and its surroundings, together with that of meeting a score of malicious appearing loafers, who were lounging about, scrutinizing every stranger with an eye of eager curiosity, those indications the presence of evil designs, those stories, which I had long thought forgotten, flashed upon my recollection with vivid distinctness. And had it not been for the fatigue and weariness which I felt in consequence of riding all day on the rough and hilly roads, I believe I should have been induced to find some more favorable place where to pass the night. But, as it was, I chose to confront the danger of staying at the inn, be it little or great, rather than seek a more hospitable shelter.

Ordering supper, I set about to make myself comfortable as possible in the midst of the existing circumstances, which would haunt me with grim forebodings regardless of my best efforts to supplant them from my mind. In fact, they so wrought upon my mind that I began to view them as vague presentiments that if I stopped at the inn that night some dreadful adventure would befall me. But my resolution, once formed, was not to be departed from, let presentiments argue what they would. And with a firm determination to stay at the old inn I answered the landlord's call for supper, and partook of his viands with a relish which only an appetite sharpened by a toilsome ride can furnish.

After supper I joined the crowd of loafers in the bar-room, who, on my entrance, appeared to be holding a secret consultation among themselves, which my presence seemed to disturb, as their consultation ceased almost immediately on my entrance. And after exchanging sundry looks and gestures, one of their number arose and came and seated himself on the rude bench beside me, where he endeavored, with a series of questions, to learn my destination, business, &c. But in answering his questions I so prevaricated that he learned little or nothing of either. The others, on seeing their companion fairly engaged in questioning me, arose and went to another room, the landlord leading the way, thus leaving me alone with my inquisitor, who, unimpaired by my equivocation, continued to apply his questions to my exceeding annoyance. How long I should have been doomed to endure this vexation I cannot say, had it not been for the arrival of a fellow-traveller—a swarthy, fractious, appearing Dutchman, who, like myself, sought shelter for the night at the old inn.

On the arrival of the Dutchman, the landlord reappeared. After he had arranged matters with his new guest, I told the landlord I would like to be shown to my room, as, being tired, I wished to enjoy a good sleep that night. The landlord complied to my wishes by shouting—

"Ho, Dick! bring a light; this ere stranger wants to go to bed."

Dick presently appeared with a light, and I was shown to my room, thereby eluding my impertinent questioner.

Carefully securing the door, and placing my revolver under my pillows, I went to bed, feeling prepared to receive an attack from the inmates of the inn, in case such an attack should be made. With such thoughts to wait me to sleep, I was soon

The Dutchman's Experience.

The following experience we republish by request, from sketches of Western Methodism, by Rev. J. B. Finley.

When we were traveling the Cross Creek circuit, in 1815, in a region of country which was mostly settled by German Lutherans, and not much regard paid to the Sabbath, or any religion, there lived a German by the name of Gast. He was one of the principal men of the neighborhood, and had great influence among his German friends. At one of our love-feasts we heard him relate his experience, and though it was in very broken English, yet it was told with an unctious and a power which melted all hearts, and which thrilled and interested us so much that we have not forgotten it to this day.

There is something peculiar in the German mind and character which shows itself, perhaps, more strikingly in regard to the subject of religion than anything else. It seems that in whatever enterprise a German embarks, it engrosses his entire energies, and when once fully committed on any subject, he adheres to it with an energy, zeal, and perseverance worthy of all praise. Staid and sober as he may appear, he nevertheless has the excitability of a Frenchman without his mercurial nature. Luther was a noble type of the Teutonic mind, and exhibited the different characteristics of which we have spoken, when he said he would go to the Diet of Worms if there were as many devils in his way as there were tiles on the roofs of the houses; and when, in his excited imagination, he saw the devil before him in his study, and threw his inkstand at him; and, also, when on another occasion, he was arraigned before an ecclesiastical council for heresy, and threatened with punishment if he did not retract, he said, "Here I stand, God help me!" One has said, "Get a German once converted, and there is little danger of his refusing to take up his cross, or turning back to the beggary elements of the world."

They seem to carry out more fully Mr. Wesley's idea of Methodism than even the English brethren themselves. When they sing, "they sing lustily;" when they pray, they pray with all their might; when they speak in class meeting or love-feast, they come right to the point of Christian experience without any circumlocution. Such was the case with our good German brother whose experience we are going to relate.

Shortly after the speaking exercises commenced, he arose and said, "Mine dear brethren, ven I comes to dis place das nobody here. Den after, mine freinds dey comes too, and ve did comes along very good, as ve dot. Ve did drink viskey, and frolic, and dance, and ve all dot it was very nice; but binebys der comes along in de neighborhood a Methodist breacher by de name of J. Shackelford, and he breaches and breaches, and brays and brays, as you never see de like in all your lives. He says, 'You beoples all goes to hell unless you git converted, and be saved from your zins.' Now, vell den, de beoples begins to talk seriously on dis matter, and dey say ve must do better, or sare enough, de devil vill git us unless as he says. Den dey gits Christen, and begins to pray; and dey valls down, and brays, and crows, and hollers, and I says to my beoples, dis is de devil; and it goes on till it comes to my neighbor Honnes. Vell, I does not go and my wife and gals does not go, because I said it was de devil. Vell, however, I gones so near to mine house, I says I vill go and see vat is dis ting vat makes de beoples so crazy. So von night I goes to Honnes's to see de brayer meeting, and I sets down and sees de beoples come in, and dey looks shuck like dey uses to do, and I dot it was all vell; but dey soon begins to sing and bray, and I dot dis is all right. Den some pegins to croom, and valls down; and I says, 'Dis is de devil, and I vill shuck go home;' but ven I went to rise up I could not, vor I was fast to de bench. Den I was skeered, and I said, 'Dis is de devil sure enough.' I looked round, and I dot de door was growed up, and I was fast enough. Vell, vell, den I says, 'Mine Got, de devil vill git me now, by sare!' I looked more for de door, and presently I sees him, and I makes von spring and out I goes head foremost. Den I gits up, and runs mit all my might till I comes to mine fence, and ven I goes to git over I lands down smack upon my pack, and now I says, 'De devil vill git me, py sare!' I lays dare for some time, den I gits up, and climbs de fence, and goes to my house, and dot I would shuck to be bed mit making any noise; but shuck as I was gittin in ped smack down I comes on mine pack upon de floor; and Madalana, mine wife, did shump out of de ped, and did schreem; and Petts and Kate—dash my two gals—dey did shump up and schreem and holler, and dare I lays, and I says, 'O, mine Got, tis ish to devil!' Madalana says, 'No matter for you; it shuck serves you right; you would go, and now you prings de devil home mit you to your own house.' Petts and Kate dey cries, and mine wife she scolds, and de devil he shakes me over de hells, and all my sins shuck comes up to mine eyes, and I says, 'O, mine Got, save me!' After a vile I goes to ped, but I not sleeps. I says I gones to ped, but I not sleeps. I says 'O mine Got, mine Got, vat vill become of me!' Shuck at daylight I gits up and goes down to my barn, and gits under de horse-trough, and smack I comes on mine pack again. Den I cries mit all my might, 'O, mine Got, mine Got, have mercy upon me!' I dot I was going to de hells. Shuck das something say to me, 'Di sins pe all forgiven!' Den something comes down all over me at my hee, shuck like honey, and I opens my mouth shuck so vild ash I can, but it filled so full it run over, and den O, I was so happy as never I was before in mine life! I did shump like a deer, and I hollered, 'Glory, glory to mine Got!' mit all my might. Mine hosses dey did veel round and shorted, and I did veel round too, and hollered glory, and I did not know dem, and dey did not know me. Presently I saw mine gray hoss, Pob, and I snatched him round de neck, and he did veel round, and I hollered, 'Glory, glory, and bless de Lort!' I love dis hoss unto dis day so petter than any. I now ish on mine way to de hells, and dare I vill bless Got for his pringing me down on mine pack, and for mine wife and mine gals, for dey now gones mit me to glory; so, mine bruders, ve vill all bineby meet in dat got world, to braise de Lort forever and ever."

Voluntary Exiles.

Over three hundred people sail from this port to-day, on the steamer Marmion, for Brazil. They are most of them from this and neighboring States, and leave the country, voluntary exiles, forever. It is a sad and sorrowful fact to record, but it is nevertheless true. Furthermore, we understand that other vessels are to follow the Marmion, with the same destination, and that it is probable they will go out full of emigrants. The feeling of discontent, of anxiety, of despondency, runs higher than ever—higher even than immediately after the close of the war. That, fortunately, was short-lived, in consequence of the liberal and magnanimous policy of the President; the emigration was arrested, and many of the exiles found their way joyfully to their former homes. But, unfortunately, the outward movement now going on cannot be similarly arrested. These people, with whom we have conversed, are utterly sick at heart; and when we tell them the sorrows of exile from their land of their birth, they avow they would rather endure all, and more than all, the fancy can conjure up, than longer to live here in doubt, anxiety, and alarm.

They go into exile in a far distant land, where they will find everything conflicting with their own ideas, manners, and customs, and where, except among themselves, they will never hear the sound of their own tongues, nor the chiming of their own Sabbath bells. A more sorrowful emigration is not recorded in history, and if anything could touch the heart, it is this.

Those who have left are mostly men of sincere and practical usefulness, accustomed to the labors of frontier life, and the families of such. They are a loss to us, and a great gain to the country whither they go.

On the 20th proximo, another first class steamer will sail hence for the same port, under the auspices of the agent of Brazil, General D. Goicouria.—N. O. Paper.

D. N. S.—A meeting of the Do Nothing Society was held in this place a few days since.

Sam Lazybone took the chair. The Secretary made his report—that at the last meeting nothing had been done, according to the Constitution of the Society.

Jim Vacuum offered to make a motion, but did not move from his seat. He observed that it was a popular prejudice that it was the duty of man to work. The present order has been formed for the encouragement of idleness. A new member was waiting to be initiated.

The President said: "Let him come in."

The candidate was brought in on a four post bedstead. After giving the password the President administered the oath of eternal laziness, and desired the candidate for admission into the order to repeat it after him. The candidate waited till the President had finished, and replied "Ditto."

The Vice-President then asked the candidate if he would take a drink?

The candidate nodded, and opened his lips.

"The Secretary will now read you the rules of the society," said the President. Candidate nodded.

"He'll do," said the President, approvingly.

"Yes," said the Vice-President, "he'll do—nothing."

The member's name was enrolled, and he was roused to pay his initiation.

He did nothing of the kind. Nothing else took place. Nothing more was said. Nothing more was done.

We know nothing more of the proceedings.

Adjourned.

RELIGIOUS COURTESHIP.—A young gentleman happened to sit at church in a few adjoining one in which sat a lady, for whom he conceived a sudden and violent passion, and desirous of entering into a courtship on the spot; but the place not suiting a formal declaration, the exigency of the case suggested the following plan—

He politely handed his fair neighbor a Bible open, with a pin stuck in the following text: Second Epistle of John, verse fifth: "And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new command unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another."

She returned it pointing to the second chapter of Ruth, verse tenth. "Then she fell on her face, and bowed herself to the ground, and said unto him, why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldst take knowledge of me, seeing I am a stranger?"

He returned the book, pointing to the thirteenth verse of the Third Epistle of John. "Having many things to write with paper and ink, but I trust to come unto you, and speak face to face that our joy may be full."

From the above interview a marriage took place the ensuing week.

A Boston paper relates the following: "Colonel R. spent the winter in Lexington, Kentucky. A friend of his went out to visit him. 'Come Sunday,' says the Colonel; 'I want you to hearken to our church bells. There's four of 'em. Each of 'em sounds out its own denominational call.'"

There's the Episcopal. That is a heavy deep-toned, sonorous bell. Now you see if that don't ring out—'Postolic succession! Postolic succession!'

"Then the old Presbyterian—that's most de deep sounding, and that says: 'Eternal dam-na-tion! Eternal dam-na-tion! Eternal dam-na-tion!'

"The Baptist is quicker—a sharp, snappy bell—and that says, rapid: 'Come up and be dipped! Come up and be dipped! Come up and be dipped! Come up and be dipped!'

"But the Methodist—that's a crowder—it talks right out: 'Room—for—all! Room—for—all! Room—for—all!'

A top has been invented in Paris called the prolific top; it is set spinning by a thread and needle. As soon as it is fairly in motion, a half dozen small tops come out of it—now that is the inventor's secret—and begin to spin around it like the satellites of Jupiter, and after some time the top reabsorbs them.

The Children in the Woods—A Sad Story.

The Austin (Texas) Gazette narrates the following melancholy incident of the death of two children who had been lost in the woods. They were twins—a brother and sister—four years old, named Dunbar, residing in Limestone county. The Gazette says:

The day was mild and pleasant and they had been playing between the house and spring, not far distant, where their mother was engaged in some household duty. How the little innocents were tempted into the forest's depths is not known, but darkness came on, and the children were missed and did not return. The country is sparsely settled, and no neighbors could be called on to assist in the search until morning. Then the alarm was given, and numbers joined in the vain effort to find some trace of the lost ones. This was continued until the evening of the third day (the searchers then numbering nearly one hundred), when they were discovered in a thicket, about two miles distant from the house, lying side by side. They were the nephew and niece of Capt. Can. of Dallas, the governor's private secretary, and he has sent as a portion of a letter from his sister, the unfortunate mother, which has sensibly affected us, and from which we have gathered some of the additional details of this melancholy affair, given above. She mentions another fact, which, simple as it is, touched our heart to the core. The shoes and stockings of the little darlings had been taken off and were found near them. The explanation of this to our mind is plain. When night came on there was a sudden change in the weather, peculiar to this region, called a wet norther. The effect of the cold on the human system is well known. The children became more drowsy as the piercing wind chilled through their tender bodies, until they could resist the influence no longer, and then, in a half unconscious state, thinking they were at home, they pulled off their shoes and stockings, and as it seemed to them, went to bed. And so, locked in each other's arms, they fell asleep to awaken in Heaven.

Mrs. PARTINGTON'S LAST.—"What's the matter, dear?" said Mrs. Partington, as she threw the paper that he had been reading, down upon the floor and stamped on it. "What makes you so obnoxious, Isaac?"

"They're going to stop the importation of 'fire-crackers,'" replied Ike, with a tremendous flourish.

"Well, well," said Mrs. P. as soothing in her tone as a politician, "I don't see anything humorous in that. And you need not be so pugnacious about it either; because it doesn't infect you anyhow."

"I'd like to know how they're going to keep Fourth of July," cried he, wiping an indignant tear from his eye. "Didn't John Quincy Adams tell us to burn all the tar barrels, and ring the bells, and fire all the crackers we wanted to? And now Mr. Fessenden, only because they burnt his city down last Fourth of July, is going to stop their importation. I wish I was a member of Congress."

"Don't Isaac," the old lady interrupted him. "Don't wish such a wicked thing as that, remember you have got the family virtue to maintain."

She looked up as she spoke, at the picture of the corporal of the bloody 'Levent' on the wall; a sigh raised the white kerchief on her breast, at the sight of that Spartan embodiment of virtue; and, giving Ike a new three cent piece that she mistook for a one, she relapsed into the stew then pending.

"A Head," the New Orleans Crescent, is responsible for the following: "If you wish to prevent people stepping on your corns, cut them off! It will also prevent corn-stirration!"

A RETIRING Western editor says "that all is vanity." From the hour he started his paper to the present time he has been solicited to lie upon every given subject, and can't remember ever having told a wholesome truth without diminishing his subscription list, or making an enemy. Under these circumstances of trial, and having a thorough contempt for himself, he retires in order to recruit his moral constitution."

ONE'S SELF FINES.—A Scotch old maid who was asked to subscribe to raise men for the king during the Peninsular war, answered: "Indeed, I'll do no such thing; I never could raise a man for myself, and I am not going to raise men for King George."

A clerk in a post office heard a tap at the window of the ladies department, when he should find there but a man by the name of Drake.

"Mr. Drake," said the clerk, "will you please go to the other side; this department is for Ducks."

MUSIC RECEIVED.—From D. P. Faulds, Louisville Ky. "Pet Schottisch," by Grao E. Murray; and "Eminence Quick Step," by Prof. T. E. Bayley.

LADIES, go to Jones & Smiths, and see some beautiful Parasols and Fans just received, and for sale cheap. Also, a new lot of White Marseilles Spreads, just received. Call and see them.

We have the first number of the Clarion published at Lebanon, Ky. It presents a neat appearance, and is in every respect a good paper. We wish it a long and prosperous career.

The Shelby County Agricultural and Mechanical Association held a meeting on May 8, and elected officers for the ensuing year. The next fair will begin August 27, and continue four days.

In this issue we announce as candidates for Representative from this county, Col. Culvin Sanders, and W. S. Helm Esq.

We also publish a call upon Jas. S. Morris, Esq., to become a candidate. From such good material Shelby cannot fail to select a good Representative.

HEADACHE.—The brain and stomach are very intimately connected, consequently a disordered stomach produces Headache, Dizziness, Vertigo, &c. Cor's Dr. Pepsia Cure will certainly correct the stomach, and assist digestion, thus removing the cause of these troubles.

We are requested by Dr. G. J. Stivers, to say that he has made ample arrangements for the more prompt prosecution of his extensive practice by securing the services of an able assistant. Persons who have had to wait for an opportunity heretofore, for dental operations, will appreciate this move of Dr. Stivers.

LIBERALITY.—In looking over the list of premiums a few days since, awarded at the fair held by the Shelby county Agricultural and Mechanical Association last August, we noticed two very liberal premiums given by our fellow townsman, Dr. G. J. Stivers. The following are the premiums: Best hand made gingham sun bonnet paste-board splits, made by a lady—$10.

Best male rider married man—Silver cup, $10.

Individuals in our community who witnessed the administration of Nitrous Oxide Gas in New York city, and other principal cities, and who have since taken it at Dr. Stivers' Dental Cabinet, unhesitatingly say that the mode of administering it, is far superior to any they ever saw in the East or elsewhere. He does not use the filthy India rubber bag used by some disreputable persons. But his Gas is in a fine zinc reservoir suspended over pure water. Thus keeping a pure and excellent article always on draught.

USEFUL ARTICLE.—We have received from B. B. Ross, an indelible lead pencil for marking linen &c. It is a great improvement on the old method of marking clothing, and can be used with more neatness and despatch as there is no blotting, and no preparation required except the dampening of the fabric to be marked. Indelible ink may as well subside, for this pencil will come into universal use. One pencil will mark 1,500 articles of clothing, consequently it will last an editor a long time. Call at B. B. Ross' Book & Drug Store, and get one.

THOSE OF OUR READERS who lack a growth of hair upon the face, or those whose hair is falling out, or have become bald, would do well to try "Dr. SEVIGNE'S RESTAURATEUR CAPILLAIRE." This preparation has been used by thousands in this country and Europe, with the most gratifying results. Testimonials of the most flattering character have been received from the most wealthy and influential citizens of the country, and will be sent free to any one on application, by Messrs. BERGER, SHUTTS & Co., Chemists, of Troy, N. Y., the only agents in America for the sale of the same. Read their advertisement in this paper.

NEW GOODS.—J. T. THORNTON takes this method of informing all his old customers and as many new ones, that he has just returned from New York with a good stock of beautiful goods for the Spring and Summer trade, consisting in part of Real Point, Point Applique, Valenciennes, Cluny, Guipure, and Blood Lace and Insertings; Embroidered Plouncings, Edgings and Insertings; Kid, Silk, Buck, and Lisle-thread Gloves; Lace Points, Lace Mitts, Cors ts, Parasols, Umbrellas, Shawerettes; Irish Linens, Nansooks, Swiss Muslins, 8-4 French Gingham, Linen Cambrics, Cotton and Lisle-thread Hosiery, Zephyr Shawls, Hooped Skirts, Fans, Nets, Ribbons, and a great variety of Notions and Fancy Goods, which were carefully selected, and will be sold low. A call is respectfully solicited from every body.

Correspondence.

Alabama Correspondence MOOREVILLE, ALA., May 1, 1867.

MR. EDITOR: Still in the territories and expecting every morning, when I rise, to hear that I have been confiscated, blown up or ordered to leave the country. Well, should Thad. Stevens and his party conclude to do either you will hear from me immediately, as I will most assuredly fall back on Kentucky, as there is more genuine pluck in that old commonwealth than all the rest of the United States combined.

Spring time, "Gentle Annie," with its smiling face is peeping in upon us, and the gay plumage of the Magnolia expects soon to present itself to us "rebs" for inspection and admiration. It will take something more substantial than the Magnolia to quell the restless appetite of this people, and "old time" had better be putting in his best lies if he expects to accomplish anything.

We are making efforts to get back into the union, if staying at home, talking none, planting corn and cotton will do good. I think enough cotton would do more to get back to our former position, than the blabbing of every man in this country. What do we care about representation if we can make plenty of cotton, for it is equivalent to representation or anything else, as we can get the "green backs" for it, and with a plenty of that article we defy the world. If the Congress of the United States could know and see the utter disgust that a true Southern man viewed their proceedings, they would certainly stop their howling and find something more important to occupy their time. I think it would handsomely remunerate such a man as Stephens to visit the territories and see for himself how little the people care for what he says. He is decidedly the "smallest pea in the dish," frightens the people less with what he says in relation to them.

Dan Castello's Circus, Menagerie, and humberg has lately swept through "the land of flowers," and swept off a great many dollars that should have been expended for bread and meat. But who wanted to live any longer than to see one more show, and consequently the money was forthcoming and every "nigger" that could crawl was on hand with their mouths open and their eyes shining. As the establishment passed up the railroad the side of the track was strewn with their black carcasses and grinning faces. The train halted for some purpose at the depot, and during the stoppage, I heard a conversation between one of the employees and a very old negro man. The employee seemed to understand a negro perfectly well and was more after fun than anything else. Pulling out a gorgeously illustrated show bill, he presented it to the old man of color, saying: "Here old man is the great franchise bill that we have heard so much talk about, and entitles the negroes to vote. Stick it up in your house for future reference, point out with your own finger, to your own children, the illustrious men that framed this bill to make you free and equal with all men." The old darkey seemed to be considerably effected at the supposed sympathy of the employee, and drew near his side. "This is Thad. Stevens old man," said the employee, pointing to a baboon on the bill, "he is your father and you should ever love and reverence his name above all men."

Man of color, "no sir, dat ain't my daddy—my daddy was a black man—I know my daddy too well for dat. Dat thing has got a tail and I know it ain't any kin to me." About this time the train started, and the old negro returned to his cabin with his franchise bill.

Should we be successful this year with our crops, this will be a fine market for Kentucky stock traders next year, and I would advise owners of mules to hold to them, and they will certainly never regret it provided there is not another failure.

Yours, &c., NEMO.

Globe Insurance Company, SHELBYVILLE, KY., May 15, 1867.

EDITOR SHELBY SENTINEL: Dear Sir: I take pleasure in stating that the loss occasioned by the burning of my Hotel, in Shelbyville, was promptly adjusted by the Globe Insurance Company of Kentucky in which, I had a policy for $2,000. I cheerfully recommend the Globe Insurance as a home Company, worthy of the patronage of the people of Kentucky. I also commend the President, J. D. Bondurant, Esq., Vice President, H. S. Price, Esq., and Agent, W. A. Bullock, as prompt and honorable gentlemen, worthy of all confidence.

H. C. DANIEL.

Lou. Courier copy one time, and charge this office.

The thirty-fourth anniversary of the Antislavery Society was held in New York, WENDELL PHILLIPS presided. Resolutions of an incendiary character were passed, including the paramount necessity of removing "the traitor of the White House," a recommendation to "watch" the Supreme Court, and the policy and necessity of confiscation, and a division of the spoils among the negroes.

It is said that B. F. Butler meditates a trip to Mexico, as an early day—whether in the secret service of the Government or his own book is not stated, probably the latter.

RUSSELL'S

REAPER AND MOWER.

REASON WHY IT IS THE BEST

AS A MOWER.

It runs light, is simple and complete, embracing all the flexibility, strength and durability, requisite to a first class Machine.

It has two independent driving wheels, with Rat-cats neatly enclosed in the center, out of the way and free from dirt, by which a steady motion of the knife is insured when cutting either to the right or left, and allow the knife to stand still when the machine is backed.

The finger bar is made of cast steel, and will conform perfectly to the surface of the ground over which it may be drawn, and can be raised to pass over stumps, stones, cut grass or other obstructions, as occasion may require.

The cutting device is of the most approved plan, and is warranted not to clog or choke; the guards can be set to move high or low at pleasure.

The location of the finger bar at the rear of the driving wheels, is the very best position for a mower, and the only position for a good reaper. By this arrangement of the bar the team can be attached close to the driving wheels, by which power and motion is communicated to the knife, the driver can see obstructions in time to avoid striking them with the guards or knives thus avoiding danger to himself and Machine, and with the bar thus situated it is not necessary to raise it, for ease and convenience in turning, which is a great saving on both man and team.

The finger bar can be folded up, and secured to the Machine, which makes it as convenient for transporting from place to place as a common cart.

AS A REAPER,

It embraces all the flexibility and strength of the Mower, with independent reaping bar and sickle, which can be set to cut from one to fifteen inch, suitable; the points of the guards or fingers can be raised or lowered so as to take up lodged or fallen grain in the most perfect manner.

The hand rake or platform attachment with easy side delivery is indispensable in harvesting barley, oats and flax, or any kind of grain of short growth, or when lying on the ground.

The dropping attachment or self rake is a very convenient arrangement, by which the driver can drop the grain gradually at the rear of the finger bar ready for binding.

In this combination of the side delivery hand rake attachment, with the dropping attachment either of which can be attached or detached in a moment's time, is secured the most perfect harvesting machine in existence, for with it all kinds or conditions of grain can be cut and taken up in good order.

By a very simple but complete arrangement the reaping bar, with either platform or dropping attachment, can be folded in the rear of the machine (without taking off the reel or any of its parts), for the convenience of passing through or over narrow gates, roads or bridges.

Machines are on exhibition at School & Courthouse, E. M. WARE, April 31. Agent for Shelby and adjoining counties.
